

United States Court of Appeals
FOR THE EIGHTH CIRCUIT

---

No. 01-3716

---

United States of America,

Appellee,

v.

Alonzo Wright,

Appellant.

*

*

*

*

*

*

*

*

*

Appeal from the United States
District Court for the District of Nebraska.

[UNPUBLISHED]

---

Submitted: May 14, 2002

Filed: May 20, 2002

---

Before McMILLIAN, FAGG, and MELLOY, Circuit Judges.

---

PER CURIAM.

Alonzo Wright was convicted of robbing an Omaha, Nebraska credit union. Wright appeals the district court's* denial of his motion for acquittal, contending the evidence was insufficient to identify him as the robber. We review the sufficiency of evidence in the light most favorable to the verdict. United States v. L.B.G., 131 F.3d 1276, 1277 (8th Cir. 1997). The bank teller from whom the robber demanded money testified in court that Wright was the robber. The teller's uncorroborated testimony alone is a sufficient basis for conviction. Id. at 1278. Further, the conviction is supported by numerous pieces of circumstantial evidence. We thus affirm the judgment of the district court. See 8th Cir. R. 47B.

---

*The Honorable Richard G. Kopf, Chief Judge, United States District Court for the District of Nebraska.

A true copy.

Attest:

CLERK, U.S. COURT OF APPEALS, EIGHTH CIRCUIT.